BORDERLESS DREAMS “SUEÑOS SIN LIMITES”

Wednesday, October 5 | 2:00 - 3:30 p.m. (MST) | online

Join Samantha Ramirez-Herrera, entrepreneur, filmmaker, creative director, writer, mother, feminist, and civil rights activist, as she shares her story about growing up undocumented.

Ramirez-Herrera shares her compelling journey, including how she forged ahead despite challenges she faced from language barriers, economic obstacles, cultural differences, immigration policies, and lack of resources for higher education.

'Borderless Dreams' is a program focused on inspiring courage and catalyzing positive and bold action toward students' biggest dreams. By choosing to come out of the shadows, allowing ourselves to dream big, and facing fears with courage, we have the power to find growth.

WHY COLONIZATION IS AN OVERSIMPLIFIED STORY OF HISPANIDAD

Thursday, October 6 | 3:00 - 4:00 p.m. (MST) | online

Join Tiffany Montoya, Ph.D., a philosopher specializing in social and political philosophy, ethics, and the philosophy of race, for a discussion of ethnonyms.

There is a debate about the use of the term 'Hispanic' vs. 'Latino/a/x' when referring to people in the U.S. with varying degrees of Spanish ancestry. There are many valid explanations for the use of either term. Dr. Montoya focuses on the critique and dismissal of 'Hispanic'.

This is a conversation about the lesser-known history of Spanish emigrants, the debate between ethnonyms, the placement of 'Hispanidad' and 'Latinidad' in the realm of race and ethnicity, and understanding one's moral responsibility to anti-racism as a 'mixed raced ethnicity'.
